HAS students focus on service

ELKINS-Highland Adventist School students focused on service during the holiday season.

Staff, students and school families worked together to collect non-perishable food items that were donated to the American Legion food basket program. Gift items were also collected for distribution to students at the West Virginia Children's Home. A third project involved students creating 110 handmade Christmas cards which they hand delivered to residents at the Elkins Regional Convalescent Center. Students also entertained residents with Christmas carols as they sang up and down the halls of the center.

“Service activities like these are not only a help to the people who are served, they are a blessing to our students as they learn how rewarding it is to give,” states Principal Cheryl Jacko said. “We are proud of the efforts of our students this holiday season and hope they are developing lifetime habits of service. We also want to express our appreciation to the American Legion and the staff members at both ERCC and the WV Children's Home for providing us this giving opportunity and for their daily efforts to improve the lives of people in our community.”

Highland Adventist School offers quality Christian curriculum as well as a variety of service opportunities for students in grades Pre K-12. For more information, call 304-636-4274 or visit www.highlandadventistschool.org.
