ELKINS, W. Va. (WDTV) -- Christmas is drawing near and the Elkins Rehabilitation and Care Center is continuing their annual traditions with its Christmas candlelight service.

This is ERCCs 13th year to hold this tradition. The candlelight service is to give an opportunity to those who are unable to go to a Christmas service. Family and friends were invited to join their loved ones in the candlelight service. With a service, music and candle lighting, everyone was thankful to celebrate with their families.

"It's a beautiful service," says Tara Shaver, ERCC Administrator.

"We have a reception following. We think all the residents and families enjoy it. They like having their own candlelight service and we bring it to them right here," said Grace Roy, Director of Human Resources.

The First United Methodist Church Chancel Choir and the Conway Ringers were there to bring the Christmas cheer with everyone's favorite carols.
